

Ever wanted to get published alongside leading thinkers such as Cecil Balmond, Daniel Libeskind, Martin Kemp, Alain de Botton, and Carolyn Christov-Bakargiev, to name a few?

Well now you can!

Balmond Studio's research-led blog TiP is opening its doors to submissions!

WHAT?

TiP explores new concepts and creations across the arts and science. We're looking for stories, projects, and inspiration in this arena. Generally we cover: architecture, design, art, science, and culture. We like ancient ideas too if they can be related to a new (or forgotten) understanding of the world.

WHO?

We are interested in submissions from anybody. If your content is good, original, and relevant, we are interested!

HOW?

You can contribute with an original story, an interview, an art, architecture or design project; with research, an essay, multi-media content – video, audio, animation, photography... Surprise us!

YOUR PITCH!

For your pitch, send us a three-sentence paragraph outlining what your content is, how you are going to present it, and what value it offers our readers. If you plan on including any images or video to your post, please include those in your pitch submission if possible.

Dropbox and Wetransfer are good for sharing large-size files.

WHERE?

Please pitch your submissions via email to: editorial@balmondstudio.com

WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU?

Being published! Reaching a new audience and sharing your ideas with the world! Being featured in our monthly newsletter, and across all our social media platforms.

So don't be shy and send us your great work!

For more guidelines visit tip.balmondstudio.com