

working from home competition

ARCHISTART

WFH2020

Working from home

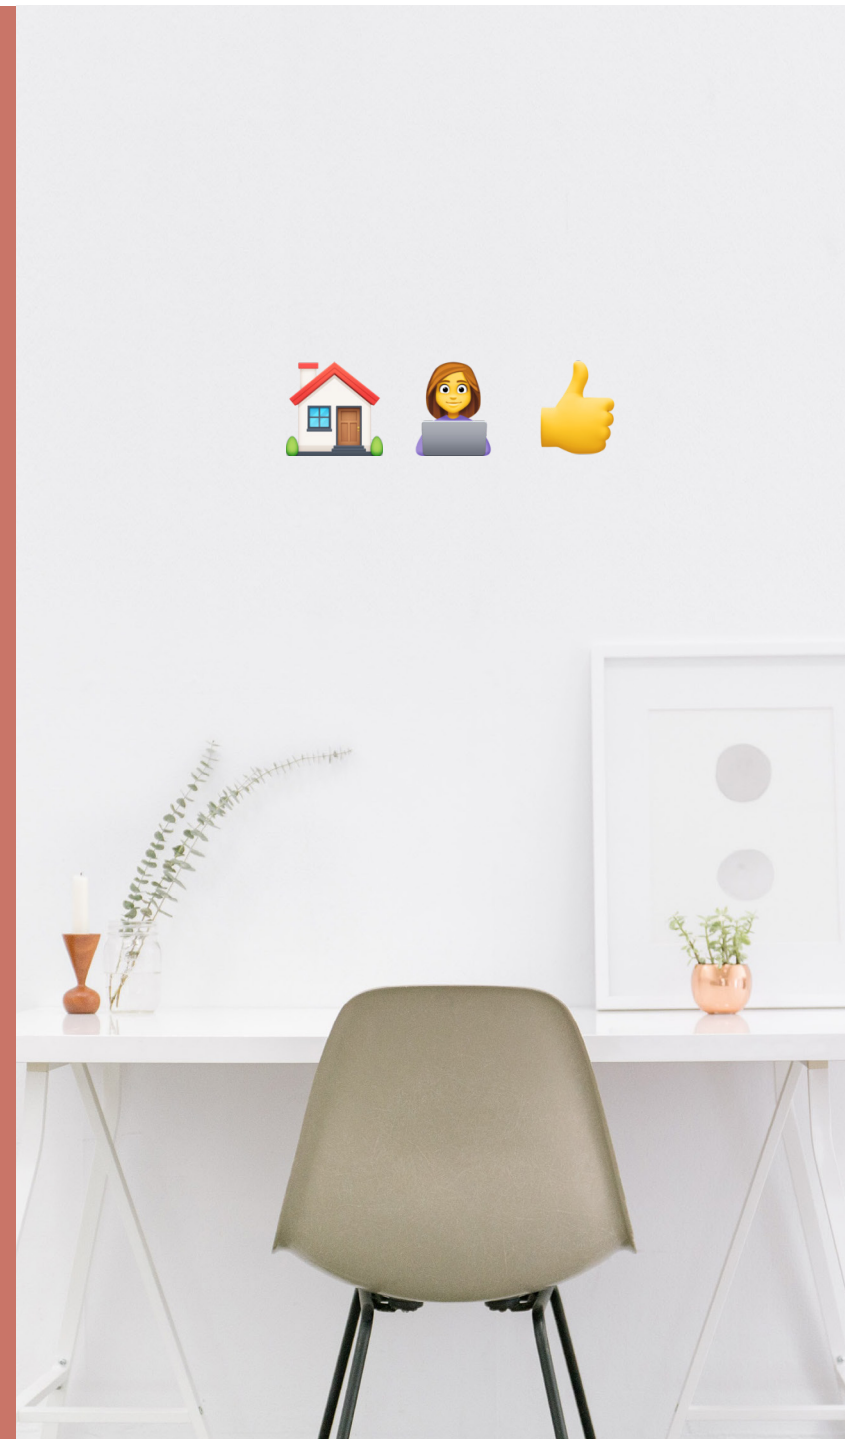

competition is the new international contest of ideas promoted by Archistart in order to experiment future visions on the coexistence between living and work.

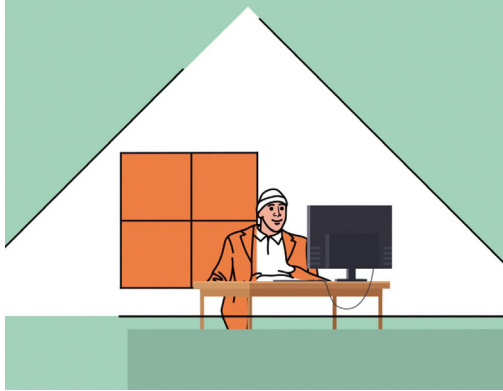

The unprecedented current situation dictated by the international health crisis requires us to reflect on remote work and on the sustainability of carrying out our work inside our homes.

This strange and unusual situation does not offer guarantees on its foreseeable duration, and imposes on us a temporal uncertainty marked by continuous and sometimes radical change of plans, at many levels, including one of the worlds that interests all of us closely: work (in general), and the remote one in particular.

Remote work has experienced a sudden increase, meeting the urgency imposed by Coronavirus. But can we really define it as a smart working style? Are our houses adaptable to this use?

Life after coronavirus: how will the pandemic affect our homes?

As people around the world face the realities of self isolation, Ukrainian architect Sergey Makhno predicts how our homes will change once the coronavirus pandemic is over.

When home becomes the workplace: mental health and remote work

20 Tips for Working From Home

The outbreak of the coronavirus has more whome. If you're new to working remotely, these tips from a home-office pro can help you stay productive and maintain balance.

Why do I need to work from home due to coronavirus?

the theme

What we are experiencing seems more like working at home rather than at the office and the term “teleworking” is suitable to describe the situation.

Working from home (WFH) - also called remote working, telecommuting, telework/teleworking, mobile work, Activity Based, New Way of Working according to the most recurring terms to describe it - is a more complex organizational paradigm, the result of a profound transformation that finds technology as an enabling factor and an instrument of acceleration.

However innovation does not end in technology, but includes our domestic sphere with an open question about the future of living.

Roberto and Giulia will live in this apartment and you are entrusted by the young couple to research and plan an innovative concept for their home. Roberto works for a consulting firm and Giulia is a designer.

At the end of the pandemic, their companies decided to give their employees the opportunity to work from home (WFH) more frequently. Roberto and Giulia have decided to adopt this working style every other day and want a more comfortable home setting to better organize the working sphere. Both of them are very innovative and open to experimental proposals.

The typical WFH day alternates moments of concentration and individual work with others on calls and meetings with colleagues. How do you imagine a joint of such activities in the home spaces?

Starting from the reference apartment (you can download the floorplan together with the contest rules), the competition participants are asked to imagine a new interior concept that interprets and investigates the relationship between the domestic and working dimensions.

Participants are free to completely modify the interior spaces and the layout of the apartment, except the perimeter walls and windows.

how to produce

The project must be presented with one table in DIN-A1 (horizontal) format.

The table must report exclusively the competition name and the application code > WFH2020 - uniqueID (the table itself must be named in the same way).

If the name of the team or its members, or any explicit reference appear so that it is possible to associate the project to the team or its members, the proposal will be banned without any possibility of refund.

The contents and the presentation of the table are under the full responsibility and freedom of the participants, which can adopt any graphic tool to make better understand the design idea.

Anyway we suggest to include at least:

- Main plans
- Sections (partial or total)
- 3D Views

Not only the idea and the quality of the project will be considered as important, but also the clearness and the representation skills, so that the content is expressed at best. Short captions are also allowed but only in Italian or English, other languages will not be taken in consideration.

The table must be exclusively in Jpeg format and DIN-A1 (horizontal size), with a maximum weight of 3 Mb.

A 72 dpi resolution is suggested, but also bigger resolutions are allowed (as long as the file doesn't exceed 3 Mb).

In addition to the table you can also add further details about your project:

- cover (mandatory)
- description (mandatory)
- 2 images max 1MB (optional)

anyway just the A1 table will be evaluated in the contest*
