

Participant Guidelines for the Busan International Architecture Design Workshop 2021

Workshop Outline

Due to Covid-19, the world is undergoing an unprecedented period of change. All aspects of human life, including politics, the economy, and society, are being reorganised. This wave of change demands a new paradigm for architecture, and cities, as well. These changes also come with a variety of normative and substantive questions.

What role should architecture and cities play in this period of change? Should we simply adapt to change? Or should we prepare something new? What will be the role of architecture? Although contradictory, it seems that one prerequisite is needed to answer these questions. That prerequisite includes the firm fundamentals and offers flexibility in order to respond to these changes.

BIADW 2021 intends to welcome this opportunity to tackle these straightforward questions about the basics and flexibility that architecture must have. Through the theme of Pier 1, we would like to have an opportunity to rethink the role of architecture in the city of Busan.

What message can architecture give to Busan through this?

We hope that this workshop is a great opportunity to show architectural inspiration based on your passion.
